Don Whitley Scientific to market range of Zisys microbiology automation systems

Don Whitley Scientific Limited (DWS) announced today that they have signed a distributor agreement with specialist microbiology automation company, Zisys Ltd. DWS will have exclusive UK distribution rights to sell Petri-Flow branded systems, designed to automate processes and improve efficiency and productivity in laboratories. These systems are used in many different industries to handle the processing of samples in food, clinical, water and pharmaceutical microbiology laboratories.

Paul Walton Managing Director of DWS stated, "This is a significant opportunity to expand our product portfolio and provide our customers with a new and exciting range of automation systems. We are delighted to be associated with a company that has many similarities with DWS and we look forward to new developments in this expanding area of laboratory technology."

David Yeudall, Managing Director of Zisys Ltd stated, “The partnership we have established with DWS over recent months is a fantastic fit for both companies. Our partnership will allow us to design and develop cutting-edge, innovative product solutions for a wide range of customers worldwide. DWS has established a reputation over the past 30 years of providing microbiologists with undisputed attention to customer service, an ideal strategic partner for Zisys to ensure essential future growth.”
